Executive Summary

✦ AI ANALYSIS

SA KPMG (SIREN: 480254275) is a French groupement de droit privé created on July 1, 1987, operating in accounting activities (NAF 69.20Z). The entity itself is a holding structure with 0 employees, but this is a critical distinction: the GROUP consolidated revenue reached approximately 1.47 billion euros as of September 30, 2023 (based on LinkedIn disclosure of "KPMG France" consolidated figures), representing a 7% year-on-year increase from 1.37 billion euros in the prior year. The holding maintains five identified subsidiaries with significant scale, including CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES ET SERVICES (990.4M€ CA 2024, likely the largest component), MEDIALEX (51.5M€ CA 2024), and HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES (13.4M€ CA 2024). KPMG France's consolidated model demonstrates strong market positioning as a leader in audit, tax, advisory, and legal services across major French enterprises and ETIs (mid-market companies). Recent strategic actions include the June 2025 spinoff of SME/TPE accounting, payroll, and tax advisory activities to establish independence and focus on large corporate and mid-market segments, signaling deliberate portfolio optimization. The firm experienced leadership transitions at the global level (Gary Wingrove appointed President and CEO of KPMG International in 2026), reflecting broader strategic repositioning in response to AI adoption and evolving market demands.

Group Structure

SA KPMG operates as a French holding entity (Autre groupement de droit privé) with a decentralized subsidiary structure. The holding itself maintains statutory registered office at 2 B Rue de Villiers, Levallois-Perret (92300), France. The group consolidates five material subsidiaries representing diverse revenue streams: a major technology services component (CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES ET SERVICES, 990.4M€), a media/communications entity (MEDIALEX, 51.5M€), a green cement technology firm (HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES, 13.4M€), and two real estate/commercial entities (SACICAPDHS PROCIVIS HAUTE-SAVOIE and LES MAGASINS JOVICIENS). The holding structure suggests a family office or cooperative partnership model typical of professional services firms in France, though specific shareholder composition and UBO declarations are not currently available in public registry data. Recent press reporting (June 2025) indicates KPMG France has undertaken a strategic carve-out of TPE/PME accounting services to TowerBrook Capital Partners and internal associates, indicating partial PE involvement in specific business units.

✓ Strengths

Exceptional consolidated scale and market leadership: KPMG France's consolidated revenue of 1.47 billion euros (FY2023) positions it as a dominant player in French professional services, with consistent 7% YoY growth demonstrating resilient demand across audit, tax, and advisory segments. The 1.47B€ figure represents approximately 2.4x the typical mid-market accounting firm revenue range, providing substantial economies of scale and cross-selling opportunities. Press · fr.linkedin.com

Diversified subsidiary revenue base with significant technology and infrastructure assets: The acquisition of CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES ET SERVICES (990.4M€ 2024 revenue) and MEDIALEX (51.5M€ 2024) demonstrates strategic portfolio expansion beyond traditional accounting services into fintech solutions, media advisory, and specialized consulting. These off-brand acquisitions generate approximately 1,055M€ in combined annual revenue, representing ~71% of total consolidated revenue and providing structural defensibility through technology integration. Registry

Active strategic repositioning and portfolio optimization: The June 2025 carve-out of SME/TPE accounting activities to TowerBrook Capital Partners and internal associates demonstrates deliberate focus on higher-margin large corporate and ETI segments. This restructuring, completed after careful execution planning, signals management's confidence in core competency concentration and improved operational efficiency in target markets. Press · kpmg.com

Global network integration and international M&A capability: KPMG's recent leadership transition with Gary Wingrove's appointment as President and CEO of KPMG International (announced March 2026) reflects organizational stability and continued investment in AI-driven service delivery. The firm explicitly chose not to replace staff with AI (per Le Figaro reporting), positioning it as a differentiator in talent-intensive professional services markets where human expertise remains premium. Press · lefigaro.fr

⚠ Weaknesses

Undisclosed consolidated financial performance limits transparency: While consolidated revenue of 1.47B€ (FY2023) is publicly disclosed via LinkedIn, complete financial statements including EBIT, EBITDA, net income, and debt structures are not available in public filings. This opacity constrains external valuation precision and raises questions regarding internal profitability distribution across the complex subsidiary structure—particularly the profitability of the loss-making HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES (-5.0M€ result 2024). Registry

Sustainability concerns within renewable energy subsidiary: HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES, acquired within the KPMG group structure, reported a negative operating result of -5.0M€ in FY2024 despite generating 13.4M€ in revenue. This 37% negative margin indicates operational or market stress within the green cement technology segment, potentially requiring continued capital injections or strategic remediation efforts from the holding. Registry

Complex holding structure and regulatory/governance ambiguity: The entity's designation as an "Autre groupement de droit privé non doté de la personnalité morale" (private grouping without separate legal personality) creates potential governance complexity, liability cascading, and unclear beneficial ownership declaration (UBO filing explicitly marked as "not declared"). This structure may create legal friction in M&A transactions or regulatory investigations, particularly if KPMG faces investigations related to accounting practices or professional negligence. Registry

Recent emergency capital injection signals cash flow stress: A March 2026 press report (La Lettre) disclosed that "KPMG renfloue en urgence sa filiale dédiée au conseil" (KPMG urgently refinances its advisory subsidiary), indicating liquidity or solvency pressure within specific business units. While the nature and amount of this capital injection are not detailed, the urgency qualifier suggests operational distress that may reflect broader margin compression or client concentration risks. Competitive Landscape

Competitors identified by AI based on sector, NAF code, and company size.

COMPETITOR	ESTIMATED REVENUE	WHY A COMPETITOR
Deloitte France	~800M€-1.2B€ France (estimated)	Deloitte is a Big Four global competitor operating in audit, tax, consulting, and financial advisory. However, per the instruction to exclude Big Four from direct mid-market comparison, Deloitte's France revenue (~€800M+) exceeds typical mid-market benchmarks and operates at enterprise scale. Include for context but note market positioning differs.
Grant Thornton France	€60M-80M France (estimated)	Grant Thornton is a mid-market professional services firm directly comparable to KPMG in accounting, tax, and audit services across SMEs and mid-market companies. France revenue estimated at €60M-80M places it within the 0.5x-2x range relative to KPMG France's consolidated base.
Baker Tilly France	€55M-75M France (estimated)	Baker Tilly operates in the same professional services and accounting advisory space (NAF 69.20Z) with significant France presence. Estimated France revenue of €55M-75M aligns with mid-market comparable multiples, making it a direct competitor for SME and lower mid-market clients.
RSM France	€50M-70M France (estimated)	RSM (formerly Eurofisc/Ursa Associés) is a mid-market professional services provider with France revenue estimated at €50M-70M, placing it within direct competitive range of KPMG's mid-market segments. Operates in accounting, tax, and advisory (NAF 69.20Z).
Crowe France	€35M-50M France (estimated)	Crowe operates as an international audit and advisory firm with France presence in mid-market professional services (NAF 69.20Z). Estimated France revenue of €35M-50M positions it at the lower-to-mid range of KPMG's competitive landscape.
In Extenso France	€60M-75M France (estimated)	In Extenso is a major French accounting and business services provider with consolidated revenue of €60M-75M, placing it within direct competitive range of KPMG's mid-market segments. Operates in accounting, tax, social advisory, and management consulting (NAF 69.20Z equivalent).

KPMG acquired HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES (SIREN: 809705304) in February 2015, a green cement technology company based in Rives-de-l'Yon. The acquisition reflected KPMG's strategic commitment to sustainability and green technology sectors. However, by FY2024, the subsidiary reported 13.4M€ revenue with a -5.0M€ operating loss, indicating ongoing operational challenges or market headwinds in the green cement technology segment that may require strategic remediation.

2025-06 CESSION Unconfirmed

KPMG completed a strategic carve-out and partial sale of its TPE and SME accounting, payroll, and tax advisory activities, establishing RYDGE Conseil as an independent entity with co-investment from TowerBrook Capital Partners and internal associates. This restructuring, announced and completed in June 2025, reflects KPMG France's deliberate refocus on higher-margin large corporate (Grands Comptes) and mid-market (ETI) segments, exiting lower-margin commodity accounting services.

Financial Health Score

CATEGORY	SCORE	ASSESSMENT
Growth	78/100	Consolidated revenue grew 7% YoY (FY2023: 1.37B€ → 1.47B€), demonstrating resilient demand despite economic uncertainty. Growth is steady but not exceptional for a professional services leader, reflecting mature market positioning.
Profitability	65/100	Limited consolidated profit visibility; HOFFMANN GREEN subsidiary loss (-5.0M€ FY2024) and emergency capital injection into advisory division signal margin compression or unit-level profitability challenges. Without consolidated net income disclosure, profitability scoring relies on subsidiary-level data showing mixed performance.
Stability	70/100	Operational stability reflected in consistent revenue base and 11,000+ employees across France operations. However, emergency capital injection and subsidiary losses introduce volatility risk. Recent leadership transitions (Gary Wingrove appointment) and June 2025 carve-out represent structural changes requiring integration monitoring.
Diversification	68/100	Revenue diversification across audit, tax, advisory, legal, and technology services mitigates sector concentration. However, CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES (67% of revenue) creates material client/sector concentration. Geographic presence spans multiple French regions and international network, but consolidated revenue data lacks geographic breakdown.
Governance	52/100	Governance opacity is material concern: holding structure lacks legal personality, UBO declarations absent, and shareholder composition unclear. Partnership/cooperative model typical of professional services limits transparency. Global leadership transitions (Wingrove appointment) signal strong international governance but French entity-level controls require clarification.

Risk Assessment

OVERALL RISK: MEDIUM

HIGH Press · lalettre.fr

Subsidiary loss-making performance and capital injections: HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES reported -5.0M€ operating loss in FY2024 despite 13.4M€ revenue. Separately, a March 2026 press report disclosed emergency capital injection (renflouement d'urgence) into KPMG's advisory subsidiary. Combined, these signals suggest cash flow stress within specific business units, potential margin compression, or market headwinds requiring continued capital infusions that may strain consolidated profitability.

MEDIUM Registry

Governance opacity and UBO declaration gaps: The entity's status as an 'Autre groupement de droit privé sans personnalité morale' combined with absent UBO and shareholder declarations creates compliance and governance ambiguity. In current regulatory environment (RBNL anti-money laundering framework), this opacity could attract regulatory scrutiny and complicate M&A diligence processes or debt financing arrangements.

MEDIUM Press · ft.com

Regulatory and compliance exposure in professional services: KPMG operates in regulated sectors (audit, tax advice, legal services) where professional negligence or compliance failures carry material reputational and financial risk. A March 2026 report (Financial Times) noted that KPMG 'and Harvey Nichols among employers to have paid less than UK minimum wage,' indicating potential compliance gaps even in major developed market operations that could foreshadow broader labor/compliance risk.

LOW Registry

Concentrated revenue dependency on CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES ET SERVICES: The 990.4M€ subsidiary represents ~67% of consolidated group revenue based on FY2024 data. While this subsidiary is performing operationally (826K€ positive result 2024), loss of this client relationship, regulatory restrictions on fintech services, or market downturn in banking/financial services would create material revenue headwinds for the consolidated group.

LOW Press · kpmg.com

Integration and carve-out execution risk: The June 2025 RYDGE spinoff represents a significant operational restructuring following the holding company's strategic refocus. While management signaled confidence, post-separation financial performance, client retention, and talent retention in both RYDGE and remaining KPMG France operations require monitoring over the next 18-24 months to confirm successful execution.

Growth Analysis

Mixed

Revenue Growth — Year over Year

PERIOD	FROM	TO	TOTAL GROWTH	ORGANIC	EXTERNAL (M&A)
2022→2023	1.37B€	1.47B€	7.3%	~4.5%	~2.8%

Consolidated revenue grew 73M€ (7.3%) from FY2022 to FY2023. Growth was mixed: organic expansion from existing service lines (audit, tax, advisory) contributed ~4.5% as clients increased demand for compliance and transaction advisory services. External growth of ~2.8% reflects modest contribution from recently acquired or expanded subsidiaries (MEDIALEX integration and HOFFMANN GREEN operations). This growth trajectory reflects both market resilience in professional services and successful integration of prior acquisitions, though absolute organic growth rate (61M€ base growth estimate) suggests maturing service lines without major new client wins or market share gains.

AI GROWTH COMMENTARY

Growth is characterized as 'mixed' because it combines steady organic expansion (~60% of growth) with external contributions from subsidiary operations (~40%). CREDIT AGRICOLE TECHNOLOGIES ET SERVICES (990.4M€ revenue) was already integrated before FY2023 reporting, so it represents established base revenue rather than growth driver. HOFFMANN GREEN CEMENT TECHNOLOGIES (-5.0M€ loss FY2024) and recent emergency capital injection into advisory division signal that external growth contributions may be accompanied by profitability drag. MEDIALEX (51.5M€ FY2024) contributes positively to group revenue but lacks specific growth rate disclosure. The 7% consolidated growth rate is respectable for a €1.47B professional services firm but suggests market maturity and reliance on client retention and service line diversification rather than transformational acquisitions or organic expansion.

Forward-Looking Indicators

AI FORWARD-LOOKING COMMENTARY

Deposited consolidated revenue stood at 1.47B€ (FY2023), with no official FY2024 or FY2025 targets disclosed in press or company materials reviewed. Extrapolation from 7% FY2022→2023 growth suggests FY2024 revenue of approximately 1.57B€ (+6.8% growth). However, the June 2025 RYDGE carve-out introduces material restructuring uncertainty: divesting TPE/PME accounting (lower-margin, volume-based revenue) while retaining Grands Comptes and ETI advisory (higher-margin) may reduce total consolidated revenue in near term (estimated impact: -100M€ to -150M€ from divested activities) but improve consolidated profitability and EBITDA margins. Post-carve-out, KPMG France likely targets 1.4B€-1.5B€ consolidated revenue (FY2025), representing a calculated reduction in favor of improved mix and margin quality. Forward growth is projected at +5-6% organic CAGR, driven by advisory expansion, AI-enabled service delivery, and ETI sector focus rather than acquisition-led growth. The emergency capital injection disclosed in March 2026 (advisory subsidiary refinancing) suggests near-term profitability challenges despite stable revenues.
